

Randall Waddell selected as HGTV Professional Designer

Ellerslie's Randall Waddell, first profiled in The Northerly's July 2012 issue, was selected in August by HGTV to be included in their HGTV Professional Designer Network. This means that he will have a permanent home on HGTV's online Designer Showcase, Designers' Portfolio and Pro-Galleries. He will also be a featured designer throughout their Network, and will continue to contribute his residential projects throughout same.

Randall's approval as an HGTV Professional Designer was a lengthy process spanning 15 months, which included review meetings with HGTV Editors in New York City. His approval followed the featuring of three of his interior design projects for the HGTV website in the past year - the remodeling of an old bathroom in Maraval for a young homeowner; the creation of a $40,000 luxurious bathroom retreat; and the modernizing of a kitchen.

Luxurious bathroom retreat - Streamlined furnishings mixed with sparkling accents.

An old bathroom in Maraval was gutted to create this open-plan contemporary bathroom for a young home owner.

Redesigned Kitchen, featuring dark wood tones and pure white countertops.

Randall, a member of the American Society of Interior Designers (ASID) is the founder and principal designer of HomeWork Design Studio, a full-service interior design studio that handles projects consisting of home/property remodeling, interiors, and special interest in and project management of kitchens and baths.
